

It is quite a hardship to pay the tremendous costs associated with calling cell phones overseas. Since they are so widely used and many people don't even have land lines (also they could be traveling as well and not even be home), we are forced to call family members through their cell 'phones. At even 30 to 45 cents a minute plus a connection fee for each call, this can add up to a considerable sum when you are trying to "visit" once a week. Think of a family with 3 kids all living in different places; also a set of parents elsewhere/ Please help us with this. I know there are many people with relatives living over seas that try to call once a week to catch up with things and even handle problems.

Thank you
